

From: Dickman, Matt
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 12/7/01 12:03pm
Subject: opinion

I don't think you should punish Microsoft for being faster and smarter than everyone else. They have a superior product out, the problem is that nobody else has anything comparable on their level. People who use computers are not brand loyal, you should know this by now, if anything they want to be the first to have the latest thing. Microsoft always has the latest thing. Because of their hard work we are much farther along than we would have otherwise been. You should not punish the smart companies for making money and being successful, you should punish the dumb companies who sit on their ass and make the government make them more competitive.

Matt Dickman